EDITORIAL FLINGS

What has become of the old-fashioned Paris man who used to whistle "After The Ball Is Over," and "Sweet Marie?"

When a Paris man says the world is not getting better it gives you a good lead as to what kind of a life he himself has been living.

Many a Paris lad whose fond parents expected him to be an example for the rest of the boys turns out to be merely a problem.

Let us be glad that most of the things said in political campaigns are not true, and most of the political predictions may never come to pass.

Now that the girls' skirts are going to be longer, a lot of Paris men will suddenly discover that they really had very little use for glasses after all.

The trouble with a great many Paris people to-day is that they are laying too great special stress upon that part of the Scriptures which say "The Lord will provide."

Baby looks like daddy—But he's so young as yet, We will not be disheartened Nor broken with regret; He has so many years to go. This handicap may pass, you know.

One reason the life insurance agent is so popular, he is always bringing up those cheerful little topics, such as poverty, old age, death, sickness and accidents.

The man who thinks he can mount to glory on the despised forms of those he feels himself above, will wake up some day to find himself smothered beneath the contempt of men.

"Life must be awfully discouraging for the good old family hen," remarks the local Wise Guy, "for, as soon as she lays up something for a rainy day, along comes somebody and takes it away from her."

We noted in a newspaper the other day where a New York detective used up a lot of space in telling a reporter about the crooks he had caught in that wicked city. But just look at the crowd he had to pick from, and the wonder ceases.

A noted psycho-analyst, in discussing the numerous murders recently committed by women says that "woman is in revolt." Does he mean that when she bangs her humble spouse on the head with a mallet, she is merely "being a woman?"

We are informed by the scientists that fish eat but little and require but very little sleep. Wouldn't they make wonderful bridge players? They would be satisfied with the hand-out that was given them and would not always be yawning at the interesting part of the game.

President Harding has been reading the excuses made by the Republican newspapers for the defeat in the recent elections, he is convinced of only one thing—that something hit his party an awful wallop.

What Kentucky needs is more conservation of trees with merchantable timber betwixt their tops and roots, and less boasting about "family trees" which haven't the value of paw-paw bushes.

Some Paris men we know seem to have the idea that "co-operation" means everyone else working for them. Their part of the "co-operation" consists in grabbing off all the glory while the others do the real work.

A Paris man said of another recently: "That guy is so blamed conceited that he gives the impression that it was a special act of condescension for him to permit the Lord to create an earth that was not fully occupied by him and his family connections."

Pity the little centipede. Who has a hundred toes, And often wonders which Is just the one that froze. And sometimes when he freezes all, It is some job, I ween To massage each and every toe With soothing vaseline.

How strange a thing is memory— This very day upon the street A hundred faces looked on me, I heard the tread of many feet; Yet in this hour of twilight grace No sight, no sound of this bright day Can blur remembrance of one face That smiles from forty years ago.

A middle-aged Paris woman is one who can remember as far back as the time when Manhattan cock-tails with cherries in them were served in "the best families," and when the woman who did not turn down her glass, turned it up for the cherries.

In one county in Minnesota there is one cow for each inhabitant and there are bank deposits amounting to $400 for each inhabitant. It seems to us that these statistics kinder rise up to smite any dairyman who would make the assertion that there is no money in dairy farming.

The Day's Best Thought: The old phrase, "To know all is to forgive all," is very true. It is only surface knowledge that leads to bitterness and abuse. To get down into the realities of any life is almost surely to find it a life in which some radical beauty and truth has redeemed the seeming failure.

When a man who didn't go to war reads about Alvin York or Samuel Woodfill he has a miserable time trying to convince himself that there were reasons why he could not go to the war, and that restraining his military ardor was, in the circumstances, as heroic as charging a nest of machine guns when armed with a bread knife.

The colored minister of a Catlettsburg church astounded the members of his congregation recently when he arose in the pulpit and made the following announcement: "The subject of my sermon to-night will be, 'The Lord Sent Me To Preach The Gospel, And I'll Be Damned If I Don't Do It.'" On reflection the title is all right, and means just what it says, with no disrespect intended.

It happened in the local telephone office the other night. Two Paris boys whom we will call Dick and Jack for the purpose of the item, but whose real names do not matter, were holding a conversation. Dick said to Jack: "Can't you come over to-night?" Jack, answering Dick, said: "Oh, I can't. I'm washing my underwear." And to their intense astonishment, the voice of one of the operators, who was answering another call, broke in with "I'm ringing them." And they wondered if there was anyone else on the line.

Take a walk down Main street some night and count the stores that are lighted. A recent visitor made the remark that Paris after dark, was the darkest of the dark. A few exceptions could be noted, though. We are not much attracted by the idea of a great "White Way," but are of the opinion that brilliantly lighted stores would be a good advertisement for Paris merchants from now until after the holidays. And we are not "plugging" for the Paris Electric Co., either. Some might urge the objection that everybody in Paris goes in after the movie shows are over, but, just the same it would be a good idea to have the stores lighted until day, ten o'clock.

KENTUCKY CANDIDATES FILE EXPENSE REPORTS

Four Kentucky post-election statements on campaign expenses have been received by the Clerk of the House of Representatives, but in no case is any tinge of Newberyism revealed.

George W. Jolly, who tried to beat Representative Kincheloe in the Second Congressional District, filed a statement showing $50 spent in addition. Representative Johnson, in the Fourth, reported that he had spent nothing on the general election which makes his outlay nothing at all for either the primary or the general election.

Representative Rouse, of the Sixth, spent $180.50 toward the finish in addition to $201.75 already reported, and Representative Cantrell, of the Seventh, found it unnecessary to spend anything on his election campaign, although that was not true of the primary. More than 500 Congressional candidates already have filed post-election statements.

HEARST BUYS THE WASHINGTON HERALD

The Washington Herald, Happy Hooligan of the newspapers of the Capital, passed at the end of this week into the possession of William Randolph Hearst. The negotiations were conducted Tuesday.

Mr. Hearst has already a Washington evening newspaper, the Times, which came into his string by way of Arthur Brisbane, and which figured in the Senate investigation because of the money advanced the German brewers at a time when Germans and brewers were equally unpopular.

The Herald has had a long and unsuccessful career. With the advent of the Harding Administration it was purchased by a syndicate in which Julius Barnes and Herbert Hoover were conspicuous. In a city in which there was only competition as to which newspapers could sign the praises of the Administration loudest it gained no eminence. At first it was expected to help Hoover's Presidential aspirations, but Hoover did not have the brazenness necessary. He sold his minority interest to Julius Barnes, who has been carrying the bulk of the load ever since.

MOTHER!

Your Child's Bowels Need "California Fig Syrup"

Hurry mother! Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup" and it never fails to open the bowels. A teaspoonful to-day may prevent a sick child to-morrow. If constipated, bilious, feverish, fretful, has cold, colic or if stomach is sour, tongue coated, breath bad, remember a good cleansing of the little bowels is often all that is necessary. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup. (adv-T)

HOW "PIGGY WIGGLY" GOT THE NAME

Piggly Wiggly is a coined word. Clarence Saunders, who is identified with the Piggly Wiggly stores, originated the word. He was on a train going from Chicago to Memphis and while thinking of an appropriate name for his chain of stores, he recalled the fact that a pig goes through a turnstile, wiggles around and goes out again. Since turnstiles were to be used in the stores, he coined the above words and applied them to the stores.

One of the stores has been established in Paris and another is to be established at Cynthiana.

Piggly Wiggly groceries advertise liberally. Being cash and carry exclusively, the prices are comparatively low. Purchasers make their own selections and pay for it as they leave the store. Very much like cafeteria.

Fools will rush into trouble, but angels believe in observing the rules of safety first.

D'YE MIND THE TIME

When These Things Happened In Paris, As Told In THE NEWS' Files?

DAYS OF AULD LANG SYNE

There's no denying that to most of us there is a certain satisfaction in reviewing the events of long ago, as they are presented to us, either casually or by force of some reminiscence strain of the moment. And to those who lived here in the long ago the recalling of events in the old days of Paris affords a peculiar satisfaction all its own. They, perhaps, more than we who have grown used to the old place, will appreciate these items, taken at random from a copy of THE BOURBON NEWS, of Wednesday, June 22, 1881:

Mrs. O. A. Gilman has gone to Buffalo, New York, to visit relatives.

Capt. Ed. Taylor's family will spend the summer at the Garth Female Institute.

"Scrub" Webb has gone to Frankfort to accept a position with an engineering corps.

Felix Lowry sold his tobacco at $13 all around. The highest at $19.25 and the lowest at $6.70.

Mrs. Amanda Clay has gone to Cincinnati to assist Mrs. Ware in keeping boarding house.

W. W. Massie has gone into the fine sheep business, and will receive some imported in a few days from England.

Bourbon having sold her railroad stock, will pay off her entire indebtedness. We will now have no more railroad tax to pay.

A number of the boys sat up until after the eclipse Saturday night and took observations through a spy glass that held about a pint.

Ike Fields, a bloated negro loafer, got on a high flirtation last Sunday while excursions around, and came back home with one of those "things" cut over his eye.

The friends of the editors of the Sunday Mirror, will be expected to ride slow after them soon, on a trip out towards the fair grounds. Some will weep, while others will smile.

Just as our railroad stock had the least show of an opportunity to be worth something, our Magistrates had to sell it. There were but three Magistrates in the county who could see three inches beyond their noses.

Monday evening at seven, Tom Phillips, the butcher, ran Tom Griffin out of Thomas Bashford's store into the street, when Griffin drew a pistol and shot Phillips, making a painful wound in the left arm. Griffin was arrested and put in the cooler.

The Assessor's books in this county shows the following report: Number of acres of land, 273,252 1/2; value of land, $5,752,923; number of town lots, 730; value of town lots, $781,000; number of horses, 3,758; value of horses, $119,715; number of mules, 1,709; value of mules, $53,862; number of jennets, 56; value of jennets, $2,405; number of sheep, 47,920; value of sheep, $90,975; number of hogs, 2,995; value of hogs, $6,227; number of cattle, 9,345; value of cattle, $190,566.

At the old soldiers' meeting at Paris, on Saturday, Kelley Brent delivered the welcome address, to which Dr. Chinn, of Lexington, responded. After the solemn exercises at the court house, the old veterans were banquetted at the Bourbon House. The following are the names of those present, and their ages: Moore Johnson, Mt. Sterling, 86; Thomas Jones, Paris, 89; Thomas Casey, Falmouth, 84; Dr. C. C. Graham, Louisville, 97; Zach Corbin, Bethel, Owen county, 92; Enos E. Payne, Newport, 88; G. H. Perrin, Cynthiana, 87; Gillard Evans, Headquarters, Nicholas county 87; Dr. J. G. Chinn, Lexington, 84; Joshua Webb, Madison county, 89; S. M. Berry, Scott county, 85; Samuel Jones, Bourbon county, 87; Thomas White, Paris, 92.

Col. Stoner has bought of Paul Dana, (editor of New York Sun) the chustant colt Mambrino Russell, for $6,000. Mambrino Russell was bred at Woodburn Farm, foaled 1868, by Woodford Mambrino, record 2:21, and out of the dam of Nutwood, 2:18 1/2, and the Queen of the Truf, Maud S., 2:10 1/2, by Pilot, Jr. The price paid for Mambrino Russell was princely. We congratulate Col. Stoner on owning two of the grandest stallions in America, Strathmore and Mambrino Russell. On the 10th day of July, all the rollingstock and track of the K. C. road will be changed to suit the gauge of the Chesapeake & Ohio road.

John Harper, of Ruddles Mills, caught on a trot-line a cat fish which weighed 22 1/2 pounds. He brought the fish here for sale, and not being able to get ten cents per pound for it, took it back home.

Among the Bourbonites who attended the Old Railway picnic at Butler's Station, were Col. Craddock, R. Rule and wife, Towles Thornton and Miss Stoker, and Jas. Skinner. Four of five others from Ruddles Mills, who intended to get off at the station, went on to the city, and returned in the afternoon.

"Greybeard" Sam Clay has already stripped and sold from his farm in this county, 15,000 bushels of bluegrass seed, and will have gathered at the end of the season, over 20,000 bushels. He sold at sixty cents per bushel, cured. Will Ferguson also, has about 10,000 bushels gathered from his farm. The crop is an unusually heavy one.

Good-bye parties now collect every evening at the Paris junction, where fond hearts the torn asunder and sparkling eyes are made to run over and moisten the earth and atmosphere.
